

BRITISH CABINET DEFERS PROPOSED APPEAL TO THE MASSES

Delay Thought to Indicate Hope That Threatened Triple Strike Set for Tuesday May be Averted—Miners Filing And Unrest General—Royal Family Leaves London—Thousands Respond to King's Call for Reserves.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, April 9.—The cabinet late this afternoon reconsidered and held up the manifesto which Premier Lloyd George planned to make public today, appealing to the masses to support the government in the situation growing out of the miners' strike.

The action of the cabinet was construed in official circles as indicating that there may be some possibility of averting the triple alliance strike set for Tuesday.

The blackest day in England's history since Haig issued his famous "back-to-the-wall" message to the half-trapped British army in Flanders, opened with both sides in the great industrial crisis absolutely adamant.

Fervent all-night efforts to get the miners and the government together again were completely fruitless but are continued.

Determined to save the mines from utter ruin, the government sent naval engineers, adequately protected by troops into the Rhondda valley this morning with orders to start pumping immediately. This is the first use of military forces in the miners' strike. Clashes between miners and other soldiers are looked for. Other troops are expected to be sent to the Lancashire collieries where the flooding has already had disastrous results.

The royal family has moved from Windsor Castle to Buckingham Palace. Windsor lies some 21 miles from London proper on the right bank of the Thames. Buckingham Palace is in the heart of the capital. It is a fortress as well as a palace.

Premier Lloyd George is preparing a manifesto to the people of the United Kingdom, which in its gravity and appeal is expected to be no less momentous in British history than was Haig's message to the troops.

The premier is holding up the issuance of this appeal in the hope, it is said, that the executive committee of the triple alliance will return to No. 10 Downing street some time before the day is over for a conciliatory conference.

How little chance there is of conciliation, however, was indicated by this statement of a miners' delegate to the International News Service:

"It is vainly on the part of Lloyd George to think we will surrender our main weapon."

The "weapon" is the miners' refusal to safeguard the mines against flooding.

Automatic destruction of the kingdom's richest coal fields goes on unabated, accompanied by every increasing violence.

A full cabinet meeting was summoned by the premier shortly after noon.

Meanwhile London, and the rest of the kingdom, is assuming a more and more warlike aspect. Already the nation is more thoroughly "in armor"—on land, at sea, and in the air—than it was for many weeks after the outbreak of the world war.

All the improvements that the great conflict brought into being are pressed into service.

The king's call for reserves for active service is receiving a hearty response. Scotland Yard, headquarters for recruiting, was thronged at an early hour by men of all classes and ages, ready to enlist for ninety days at common soldiers' pay.

Similar prompt response is reported from the provinces. At the same time thousands are volunteering to enroll in the citizens' "emergency force" called for by the monarch in the proclamation which Lloyd George read amid cheers in the house of commons yesterday.

From Royston, "home" of the bulk of Britain's fleet, comes word of significant activity. All warships there, from the giant dreadnaughts down to the mosquito craft, are putting away their readiness to dash off on any assignment.

As the day wore on more and more reservists lined the square in front of the war office and the emblem, in answer to the king's call for army and naval reserves.

All London presented the picture of a populace eagerly resolved to meet a national calamity, but the actual pressing into service of the reserves and emergency forces was looked forward to with grave foreboding, because of the spirit of bitter defiance on the part of the triple alliance whose nearly 2,000,000 members showed every determination to maintain force with force.

The first arrest under the new powers of the government which virtually amount to martial law, was that of Peter Chamberlain, a miners' agent at Dulwich, who was charged with instigating a mob to stop pumping at one of the mines.

A number of triple alliance leaders including J. H. Thomas, the southern secretary, Harry Goulton, president of the transport workers, and some Labour members of parliament, had a conference with the premier and other ministers at Downing street early today, but the miners' federation was not represented.

As the spokesman of the powerful labor combine emerged from the premier's official residence were the gravest expressions on their faces. All refused to talk to reporters. They proceeded to Unity Hall for another triple alliance conference.

At the board of trade, while daily communications have been issued as to the progress of the negotiations it was declared the Downing street meeting was purely a private one. No report was to be issued and no arrangements made for another conference, officials said.

At Plymouth this morning there was mysterious activity among the marines. All were first recalled to the barracks, then buglers sounded assembly in the street in front of their quarters and some detachments were immediately dispatched in auto trucks to unknown destinations.

Air transport may play a tremendously important part in the government's efforts to combat the paralysis of industry, transport, traffic, and, most of all, food supply due to the strike.

"Blimps" and other airships, including the type manufactured during the war on the Zeppelin model, will be used to carry food from ports to interior points while ordinary airplanes will act as mail carriers.

The heads of the air force called on the premier early today and then hastily left for the air ministry to complete plans.

Public alarm was manifested by a sudden rush for insurance against damage, looting and pillage. Underwriters were overwhelmed with business. The rates are advancing slightly.

Voluntary economy in the use of lighting also is in evidence on all sides. Some theatres announced they will give only two night performances weekly beginning Monday, as a consolation they will give matinees daily.

Reports as to what is happening in the coal fields were but fragmentary but they indicated that growing aggressiveness on the part of the strikers. In South Wales, for instance, miners forced the stoppage of the fires at the great Glamorgan colliery.

BALLOON FOUND, MEN MISSING

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Pensacola, Fla., April 9.—Floating on the Gulf of Mexico about 20 miles from St. Andrews, the free naval balloon lost 19 days ago, was found this morning by the motorboat Electra, a Bay County fishing vessel commanded by Captain Ecker.

The balloon had no note attached to it, and the basket had not been cut away.

The basket swung with the wash of the sea. There was no trace of any of the five men who left the local air station March 22 for an all night flight. That the men are lost was the opinion officially expressed at the naval station today.

The balloon bag was submerged when Captain Ecker saw it. The basket was high enough above the surface of the water to attract attention.

Shippers of fishing vessels, and other craft which ply about the Gulf of Mexico in this section have kept an incessant watch for any trace of the ill-fated navy balloon. There had come to be something of a rivalry over which would be first to report some definite word regarding it. Hope that the balloon and possibly the crew would be found never had been entirely abandoned and when Captain Ecker entered the harbor early today at Panama City with shrouded remainder of the lost bag news spread rapidly.

The most careful search of the cloth balloon and the basket failed to reveal anything which might give clue as to what happened to Chief Quartermaster Williamson and his men. That they sank beneath the waters of the gulf at least a fortnight ago was accepted as a foregone conclusion.

RAAF KENTON'S BUREAU.

Some Brothers' Brickyard Office Broken Into Friday.

Friday evening the office at Rose Brothers' brickyard at East Kingston was broken into and $150 in money, a gold watch, a check for $50 and a bag of change stolen. It was reported to the sheriff's office this morning, and Officer Sheriff Haddenbeck investigated with the result that a young boy out on probation from an institution confessed that he was the one who had committed the burglary. He returned the lost object. He will be sent back to the institution from which he had been paroled.

AUTOMOTIVE DEALERS THEY HAVE BECOME

Attendance At Show 1,738 Greater Than Last Year—Dealers Association Adopts New Name, and Emblem, Affiliated With Chamber of Commerce and Broadens Its Scope.

The Kingston Automobile Dealers Association, which managed the biggest and best attended automobile show held in any small city in the country, got so puffed up over its success that it just naturally blew up at a meeting held Friday evening.

The proceeds took something over three hours, during which everybody smoked strong cigars, and when those who had entered the room as automobile dealers emerged from the smoke bath at a few minutes before midnight they were no longer even automobile dealers but "The Automobile Dealers of Kingston, Kingston-on-Hudson, Affiliated with the Chamber of Commerce." And they're going to have just that—"Automotive Dealers," lettered on one of the windows of the Chamber of Commerce headquarters. If the Chamber of Commerce will permit them to do so.

Furthermore, they have adopted a design, a modification of the "Rip Van Winkle Wake Up" radiator emblem, on which will appear the "Automotive" inscription and this design will be used by each member of the association on his stationery, so that nobody will have an excuse for forgetting that there are no more automobile dealers in Kingston, and so that everyone will remember that they are now "Automotive" dealers. "Automotive" covers a big field. It was explained, and includes a man who sells tires or spark plugs just as much as it covers one who sells automobiles.

Reports on attendance at the shows in 1920 and 1921 prove that jubilation over the success this year is justified. The figures follow:

|------------|------|------|
|            | 1920 | 1921 |
| First day  | 507  | 644  |
| Second day | 328  | 1494 |
| Third day  | 744  | 1678 |

Totals. 2,078 3,816

Increase this year over 1920, 1,738. "Somebody ought to get the credit for this," said Secretary Behrends. "If a mistake had been made we wouldn't have lost any time in handing out the knocks and I think we ought to be as ready with the bouquets."

The advertising committee, Roy M. Sutcliffe, chairman, was given an enthusiastic and unanimous vote of thanks.

Mr. Sutcliffe, expressing his appreciation, said he wanted to call attention to one thing, the large attendance on Saturday night. There never had been a good attendance on the closing night and everybody knew it just couldn't be done—but by the help of The Freeman it was done and everybody who came was delighted and got his money's worth. The Freeman planned that feature and put it over and was entitled to a special vote of thanks.

The vote was given, unanimously and vociferously, after which many verbal bouquets were hurled back and forth. Secretary Hudson of the Chamber of Commerce was made an honorary member of the association and various plans for increasing the usefulness of the organization, not only to the members but to the city, were discussed.

AGED NIGHTWATCHMAN AT R-G-R STORE FOUND IN BASEMENT BEATEN TO INSENSIBILITY

75 FAMILIES TO SEEK NEW HOMES

City Marshal Rice Has Served That Number of Homeholders With Dispossess Notices Taking Effect May 1.—Where Will They Move to a Problem.

City Marshal Arthur Rice is anticipating a busy and unpleasant time the first of May for he has served seventy-five dispossess notices on tenants in Kingston taking effect at that time. If these who have received such a notice from their landlord fail to vacate by then it is the duty of the city marshal to eject them from the premises.

The fact that so many families have to get out at that time does not mean that a wave of hard times has struck Kingston, for the great majority of those who must vacate have paid their rent on time, and are only too willing to continue paying it rather than seek other quarters.

Many of those who have been served with a notice will have to vacate because the house they occupy has been sold and the purchaser is desirous of moving in himself. Many of the purchasers it might be added were in the "same boat" as those who have been dispossessed, for they also received a notice to vacate, or a warning that where they lived would be sold, and in self protection had bought a house already occupied by a tenant.

Where these seventy-five families will find a roof over their heads is a problem that is causing many a sleepless night on the part of the dispossessed tenant. It is said that already some of these who have been unable to find vacant apartments have made arrangements to purchase a tent and will camp out during the summer months. This will work out well in some cases, but when the winter season approaches they will still have an unsolved problem of finding an apartment on their minds.

HARRIS TO BE TAKEN TO N. Y.

Detective Oswald Still Doubts Story of Elwell Killing—Woman Harris "Identifies" Proves Innocence.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 9.—Arrangements were being made this morning to take to New York Roy Harris, the young man who claims that he, with a companion named William Duncan, was hired to kill Joseph B. Elwell, New York sportsman, last June.

"If the police persist in thinking I am telling a lot of lies, let them keep at it," said Harris this morning. "It will mean my freedom so why should I worry?"

Detective Sergeant Oswald of New York has not yet been convinced that Harris actually had a hand in the killing of Elwell.

"My notion is that this fellow wants to get into the movies," said Oswald, when pressed for an explanation as to why Harris should make a false confession of murder.

As a reply to Oswald's statement, Harris again declared he was telling the truth, adding that he wished the contrary were true.

Harris is getting nervous. He now paces up and down in his cell and seems to be anxious to be taken to New York.

"If the police will let me see the woman in the Elwell case I can easily identify the one who called herself 'Mrs. Fairchild.' It will be much more positive than trying to identify her by a picture."

One photograph shown to Harris yesterday was picked by him as being that of the woman known as "Mrs. Fairchild," but when this woman was questioned by the police of New York she proved herself to be absolutely innocent.

A Meeting Request.

Postmaster-General Hays has issued a statement to the public asking that mail be delivered, especially by large concerns, several times a day to the post offices, rather than after the day's business is over as is the practice in many cases, making the "peak" load come around 4 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and making it impossible for the employees of the department to adequately handle mail matter offered.

STEER ATTACKED AGENT G. N. WOOD

More of Forest's Steers Run Amok in City and Freight Agent Has Narrow Escape From Serious Injury.

Friday morning another carload of western steers consigned to Jacob Forst on Abel street, while being driven down Broadway broke away, and while some of them were caught later, a few were still at large. This morning police headquarters received a "phone message that there was a wild steer loose on Pine Grove avenue, and Forst was immediately notified.

Before they reached the scene, Freight Agent G. N. Wood and two helpers of the West Shore railroad drove the steer into the stockade at the freight house. Before they could close the gate the steer suddenly turned and charged. Mr. Wood was directly in the path of the steer, and stumbled and fell, cutting a deep gash in his head. It was fortunate for him, however, that he fell, for the steer sheered off and attacked another man who got out of the way. Those who saw the incident state that if Mr. Wood had not fallen when he did he would have been caught on the horns of the steer, and badly gored.

The animal was later shot in the vicinity of Wiltwyck cemetery.

It is said that the common council will be asked to adopt an ordinance prohibiting the driving of cattle through the city streets, at the next session, in order to avoid someone being killed or badly injured.

A bent mudguard was the only damage to the Elgin but the Ford received a broken running board, a bent fender and the radiator was damaged. None of the occupants were injured.

Wounds Inflicted by Iron Furnace Shaker are Serious and Victim is Not Likely to Recover—Motive for the Crime A Mystery as There are No Evidences of Robbery—Assailant Entered by Breaking Glass in Door.

Albert W. Lewis, about 45 years old, employed as nightwatchman at the store of Rose-Gorman-Rose, Inc., on North Front street at the head of Wall street, may die from wounds inflicted with an iron furnace-shaker by someone who had gained entrance to the store during Friday night or early this morning and who struck him over the head just as the old man was about to fix the furnace for the night.

Entrance to the building was gained by breaking a pane of glass in one of the doors opening from the lowest cellar of the building, which is the floor on which the furnace is situated. The ground level outside the door is only a few feet higher than the strip of lowland extending from the store property to the track in front of the New York, Ontario & Western depot. The rear entrance to the store, where the window-pane was broken, is protected from observation by the concrete loading platform, from which goods are loaded on trucks from the floor above, and by concrete pillars supporting the platform. A person could work at the broken entrance without being observed either from the railroad depot, which is darkened after eight o'clock at night, or from Fair street extension, only a few feet away.

The lowest floor of the building contains a large number of brick pillars which support the upper floors. Besides being used for the heating plant and storage of coal, the lowest floor is used also for the storage of empty packing boxes and barrels, etc. The furnace is in the front of the cellar, toward North Front street, and about twenty feet from a stairway leading to the next level, which is used for the display of furniture. Above this is another floor which is used for furniture, kitchenware, etc., and a stairway leads from it to the main floor.

Mr. Lewis was found about 7:30 o'clock this morning by John F. Nelson, a salesman, when he arrived for work. When Mr. Nelson, who is provided with a key, entered the building he noticed that all lights had been extinguished. It is customary to keep certain lights burning throughout the entire building during the night, and such lights on the main floor are visible from the street. They are generally extinguished after the salesmen begin to arrive, but none of them were lighted when the salesmen arrived this morning.

Mr. Nelson investigated and about ten feet from the foot of the stairway on the lowest store-level he found Mr. Lewis in a crouching position against one of the brick columns. His head appeared to be battered, blood covered his face, and part of one ear apparently was missing.

Other salesmen had begun to arrive, and with the assistance of Edwin J. Koch, one of the managers, and others, Mr. Nelson carried Mr. Lewis upstairs and to the street. He was semi-conscious and unable to speak coherently.

A passing automobile and hurried him to the Kingston City Hospital. The police were notified at once and began an investigation.

About twenty feet from the brick column where Mr. Lewis had been found in another brick column, at the side of which nearest the furnace was a large pool of blood which still appeared moist. Leaving against the opposite side of the column was the iron furnace-shaker, the largest and of which is about the size of a man's bed. The end of the shaker was caked with blood. From the position of the column, the blood and the furnace-shaker it was easy to understand what had happened. After gaining entrance to the cellar, the burglar had possessed himself of the iron shaker and had stood behind the column nearest to the furnace. As Mr. Lewis passed the column on his way to the furnace, he had been struck from the side and landed and had fallen with his head only a few inches from the column which caked this would-murderer. On receiving partial consciousness later, Mr. Lewis had begun to crawl toward the stairway leading to the upper floors but he strength became exhausted when he had reached the next column, and he was finally found by Mr. Nelson.

The assault on the nightwatchman occurred after the attack Friday night, at which time he had pitched the time clock on the main floor below. In turning his second round of the book at 1 o'clock he had been knocked out by a blow on the head.

Those who witnessed the accident rushed to the scene and got Keator from under the horse, and hurried him to the office of Dr. Larkin on Broadway, where he received first aid. Later Dr. Larkin removed him to the hospital.

According to Mr. Deis he was on the right of the road, but Mr. Keator was over on the wrong side, which was the cause of the collision.

AUTO HIT RIG; KEATOR INJURED

Charles Keator of Tillson in Benedictine Hospital From Injuries Received When Deis's Auto Struck Wagon on Abel Street.

Charles Keator of Tillson was removed to the Benedictine Hospital Friday evening suffering from injuries sustained when the rig he was in was struck by an auto driven by Michael Deis of Ann street on Abel street, near Quikley's ice house.

It was about 3:30 o'clock when the accident occurred. At the ice house there is a turn in the road. Mr. Keator was driving home and Mr. Deis was on his way into the city when they came together head on at the turn in the road. Mr. Keator was flung high in the air and landed under the feet of his horse. The animal, badly frightened, attempted to bolt and slipped on the road, made slippery by the rain that was falling, falling on top of Mr. Keator and breaking several of his ribs.

Those who witnessed the accident rushed to the scene and got Keator from under the horse, and hurried him to the office of Dr. Larkin on Broadway, where he received first aid. Later Dr. Larkin removed him to the hospital.

LIBRARY AND HIGH SCHOOL

What would our high school students, our young people taking up vocational training, our older grade children do without the aid of the Kingston City Library? The following short article will give The Freeman readers some idea of the educational value of the library, and will make it plain that our local school system would be sadly hampered in its work if the library was not at hand to help out again and again.

The public library is a great opportunity; a college without entrance fee or examinations, a club without dues, a society of the best minds where no introduction is needed the most democratic institution possible. It would be a great step in advance if everyone formed the habit of using a public library. We are largely the creatures of habit, and the use of the library is a habit worth cultivating.

The city library is doing all in its power to form this habit in the school children of Kingston and particularly in the high school students. In them this habit is most desirable and necessary for from them must come the business men and women, the doctors, clergy and lawyers, in a word the future leaders of the community. One of the most important things in teaching them to use the library intelligently and efficiently. Every year the freshmen class is invited to the library. The members come in groups of 20 or 35 with their teachers. The librarian first gives them a brief talk on the catalogue and indexes and then they are asked to work out a problem by finding a book in the catalogue and on the shelf or to use the magazine index. This makes them familiar with the arrangement and classification, and more at home among the books.

It is helpful for these students, too, to look at the beautiful editions of certain books that the library owns. It is a revelation to many young people (familiar only with school text books) to see how attractive a book can be. These finely illustrated books do not go out of the building but are used to help create a desire to read these books. It certainly makes Dickens, Scott or Shakespeare appear more interesting to see them in fine dresses with beautiful illustrations.

The magazines and periodicals are of great value to both the teacher and students of the high school. The City Library subscribes for most of the best ones published and their use by the students is very large. They are used not only for current events but for works of the utmost importance that are constantly appearing that embody opinions and theories that will influence the future of mankind. To read and discuss these articles is a part of modern education.

The magazines are especially valuable in the debates. The latest and some of the best material used for debates is in the magazines and this hunting for material and using it intelligently makes the students independent and resourceful. The library has also many books on debates. It allows the use of one of the rooms in the basement for debate work, and there the debaters can talk and discuss without disturbing other readers.

The library sends to the class rooms collections of books on any subject needed by the teachers or students. The student of history, for instance, needs many books of travel, biography and some historical novels to help him understand the period he is studying. Such books as the teacher may select are loaned to the school for as long as they are needed.

A good picture will often make an idea clearer to the student than any number of explanations. The library has a collection of pictures which it loans to schools.

The high school students also come to the library for books for their supplementary reading, for recitations, dialogues, plays and stories for special holidays. The librarian and her assistants are always ready to help students using the reference books, or to look up material for compositions or graduating essays. They make lists for the teachers and look up publishers and prices.

The vocational books help the student who is undecided what he wishes to do after leaving school and for those going to college there are many books with hints and suggestions.

That all this is appreciated and used can be seen any school day by anyone coming to the library after school hours. All afternoon the library is crowded with boys and girls looking up references and taking out books. And although the lunch time is very short, many children will take ten or fifteen minutes to come to the library. It is a great pleasure to watch their enjoyment of all that the library offers them.

Library membership has not been productive of much revenue—it is desirable but never necessary to secure books—but who is there in Kingston who would not be willing to give themselves the pleasure of hearing the two famous actors give the chief scenes from Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet and Henry VIII, at the cost of one dollar a ticket, knowing that fifty cents of that dollar will go to the Kingston City Library?

Two additional patrons to the Charles Kean Shakespearean entertainment to be given at the high school auditorium next Tuesday evening have been secured. Frank Cyclopedia and Mrs. Knauth.

All who read the history in Wednesday's Freeman of Mrs. William H. Rorer's musical education and appreciate her wonderful voice will be highly gratified to know they can be entertained in their homes by hearing Mrs. Rorer's Columbia record which can be secured at the Columbia Shop, 273 Fair street.—Advertisement.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE
XXVII.—FLORIDA

FLORIDA was considered America's first health resort. It was the search for a mythical Fountain of Perpetual Youth that led Ponce de Leon, the Spanish explorer, to land near the present site of St. Augustine. His rediscovery of Florida in 1613 was on Easter Sunday, hence the name, which is from Pascua Florida or Flowery Pasture, which is the Spanish for Easter Sunday.

The French were the next settlers, founding a colony on the St. John's river. Spain promptly took action to maintain her ownership of this region and sent over an expedition which erected a fort under the leadership of Menéndez at St. Augustine in 1565 and exterminated the Seminole colony. St. Augustine is the oldest city in the United States. There followed a period of hostility between the English colonists in the Carolinas and the Spanish in Florida. By the treaty of 1763 Spain ceded Florida to England in exchange for Havana, which England had captured a few years previous. It remained an English colony until the last years of the Revolution when Spain recaptured it.

There were two provinces, East and West Florida. As the Spanish ruled Florida with a very loose form of government, this region became the refuge of pirates, smugglers and lawless characters. Such an element together with the unruly Seminoles naturally caused a great deal of trouble. To overcome this, President Monroe purchased Florida from Spain in 1819 for $5,000,000 or about eleven cents an acre. It was organized into a territory and in 1845 was admitted to the Union.

Florida is sometimes called the Everglade State on account of the vast swampland in its southern part. It is also known as the Peninsula State and is the southernmost state of the Union. Its area is 58,000 square miles.

"Y" AUXILIARY MET FRIDAY

There were some fifty members in attendance at the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary meeting on Friday afternoon. Mrs. William Longyear, the president, presided. The devotional exercises were led by Mrs. John Monroe. Plans for a birthday party were considered, and the president was empowered to appoint a chairman and ask for volunteers for this event, which will probably take place in June. Further announcement of this event will be made later.

The following new members were received: Mrs. J. D. Ennis, Mrs. Edward Benson, Mrs. Charles Hicks. The program committee presented Mrs. J. L. Dougherty, who delightfully entertained those present by singing "I Know a Bank" by Parker and "Come Where the Blue Bells Ring" by Brackett. This was followed by a greatly enjoyed piano selection, "The Dying Poet" by Gottschalk, played by Mrs. Leroy. The ladies then heard from Mr. Bridges of his work in the boys' department; of the Bible classes of both the younger and high school boys; his methods of work and entertainment and the success of the department to date. This brought the inspiring afternoon to a close.

GLAD SPRINGTIME.

Spring has come! And we're hearing
Southern breezes with a low
In the pine trees on the hillside
Where the rushing streams overflow.

All the willows, pussy willows—
By the brookside, golden March.
Now the grassy banks are waving
Branches of the tilted bark.

In the garden, 'neath the bushes,
Green tulips, blades appear;
And the tulips, blue and white,
Have forgotten winter cheer.

Barbed wire in the grass—
And the greenness with their gold
While the tulips, blue and white,
Will their purple faces show.

All the birds are singing now—
To the birds from South and North
The birds have come back to us
To sing to us of their sweet love.

Listen to the notes of their birds—
Soft and sweet, a little far
Thrilling to the heart of man
In the hills of summer air.

There are some who say that
The birds are singing now—
To the birds from South and North
The birds have come back to us
To sing to us of their sweet love.

LARGEST CYPRUS CLASS INITIATED

There was a large delegation of Kingston Shriners, members of the Cyprus Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, who journeyed to Albany on Friday afternoon to attend the ceremonial session at Proctor's Hall, which was packed nearly to its seating capacity with members of the red and the blue, three hundred and seventy-five in all, who were present to witness the initiation of the largest class ever initiated by the Cyprus Temple and witnessed by many brethren from other shrines throughout the northern part of the state. Previous to the ceremony a banquet was served, consisting of roast turkey, in the large dining room of the Masonic Temple. The Cyprus Temple band consisting of thirty pieces rendered excellent music for the occasion. After the three hundred and seventy-five new initiates had received their degrees, the large audience was favored with some very fine vaudeville by the players from the Grand Theatre. Among the twelve new Shriners from this city and vicinity were William Niles, Charles W. Shultz, Fred L. Van Deusen, James Perry, Charles D. Bois, Guy W. Wilson, William Murray, Harry J. Kiehn, George Snyder, Mr. Proctor, Arthur B. Fremont of Port Jervis and Richard Leat of Highland.

BENEFIT FOR DISABLED MEN

Woodstock Police Philip Freeman's Hall Friday Evening and Were Highlighted by Oliver Amosson—Disabled Soldiers Guests of Honor.

In spite of the unpleasant weather, Freeman's Hall at Woodstock was filled to overflowing, even standing room being at a premium, on Friday evening, when the men and women of St. James' M. E. Church paid a visit to the patriotic community to present "The Minister's Wife's New Dress" for the benefit of the county disabled soldiers. The honored guests of the entertainment were some of the disabled soldiers themselves as could attend and they were enthusiastic indeed in their expressions of appreciation of the delightful entertainment in their behalf.

As for the participants in the clever play, having become better perfect the performance was both a thoroughly appreciated performance and a thoroughly enjoyed performance. The play was given by Edward Thacher—a former instructor in handicraft for blinded soldiers—who played the telephone. Mr. Thacher's father who played a similar instrument; Mr. Bolton, illustrator, who presided at the piano, and another young man who "spelled" Mr. Bolton. Feliks "just hatched" had to dance to that music. In passing it should be further mentioned that Mr. Bolton had made a most effective poster to advertise the entertainment. In brief, it was a huge success.

The committee having the affair in charge, Miss Mary Haldane, Miss Helen Westbrook, Mrs. Downer, Frank Conkordell, C. V. A. Decker, Rudolph Dittus and Eugene Cary, in behalf of the service men wish to thank especially the St. James people who gave the entertainment, of which party Mrs. E. L. Angle was chairman; those who loaned automobiles to convey the party to Woodstock; the musicians and all who helped with the advertising, including the Kingston press; those who helped sell tickets; in fact, all who in any way contributed to the pleasure or profit of the evening.

BIRTHDAY SUPPER AT FIRST DUTCH

The chapel of the First Dutch Reformed Church was the scene on Friday evening of a very enjoyable gathering of well satisfied people who partook of the delicious prepared by the ladies of the church at their birthday supper. If January was once birth month they enjoyed the excellent supper at a table where the decorations were a tiny hill of sparkling, snow surmounted with a miniature New Year figure and there were other smaller appropriate decorations. Our great president's birth month, February, had decorated paper napkins which also bore the picture of Washington. The centerpiece was a cherry tree, showing both blossoms and cherries, while tiny logs and baskets, etc., completed the decorations. March was gay with green candles, a basket of growing shamrock as the centerpiece, with tiny green hats or hats used as the topping off of the ice cream served.

Blue birds and cherry and plum blossoms denoted that April guests should sup at one table, while a lovely May basket of daffodils and marguerites, with pretty yellow candles, bespoke May-day. June's centerpiece was a rich, splendid wedding cake surmounted with a tiny bride and groom, with added decorations of pink roses and sunflowers. July observed our national birthday with the red, white and blue, American flags, red candles, etc. August paid tribute to dog-days as was noted by a figure of his lordship, the dog, surrounded with floral decorations of August asters and other flowers. A tiny school house on a grassy hill, beside a pond, with a tiny boat, marked September, while October, Halloween month, was one of the most elaborate of the tables. Here the ladies who served wore white gowns decorated with black and white, and other caliche signs, high peaked hats, similarly decorated. October flowers of harvest time formed the centerpiece, with a tiny pumpkin atop and the pretty red candles burned gayly in rows checked apples as candle sticks. Even the ice cream was topped with the proverbial black cat. November paid homage to Thanksgiving Day with a pumpkin decorated table cloth and a huge centerpiece of all of the fruits, vegetables and nuts that one associates with Thanksgiving dinner. A brilliantly decorated and very pretty Christmas tree formed the centerpiece and chief decoration of the December table. Incidentally it is well worth mentioning that the menu was as good and the supper as delicious as the decorations were clever and pretty.

Mrs. Fisher, known as "the midger" and "girl wife," who has been ailing her marital troubles in the divorce courts for 20 years, was too weak, according to her mother, to explain her strange disappearance after a visit to a department store.

500 PUPILS IN MUSIC CONTEST

Committee and Superintendent Michael Sped From School to School Friday Afternoon and Found Children Eager to Hear Memory Records.

The Freeman knows that there are some five hundred boys and girls who are just itching to know whether they gave right answers as to the compositions played in the elimination contest preparatory to the Musical Memory Contest, to be held at the High School on April 20th. The Freeman will give the correct list before telling of one of the most enjoyable afternoon ever spent in Kingston by a Freeman reporter. Here they are:

1. Humoresque.....Lydorak
2. Mighty Lak a Rose.....Neven
3. Trauerlied.....Schumann
4. Spring Song.....Mendelssohn
5. Ave Marie.....Bach-Gounod
6. Hallelujah Chorus from the Messiah.....Handel
7. Souvenir.....Della
8. Largo.....Handel
9. Melody in F.....Habenstein
10. To a Wild Rose.....Mac Dowell

The instructor for the committee composed of Mrs. Harry P. Dodge, Mrs. William S. Ellinger and Mrs. C. N. Reed, with Superintendent M. J. Michael as official time keeper—began Friday afternoon when they stepped into the room at No. 7 School where the boys and girls were assembled for the elimination contest. It was a typical April day, with leaves just showing on the trees like a delicately tinted mist, and from the school room windows the Brabant Hills could be seen as a background to the scene within where twenty-three boys and girls, all alert, with pencils poised in air, were ready to write down the ten compositions as they were played on the talking machine by Principal Coons. Each composition was played just one and one-half minutes—and we suspect that Mr. Michael will be counting one and one-half minutes for several nights in his sleep after counting eighty of them on Friday—and it was exceedingly interesting to note the expressions on the faces of the boys and girls as they recognized the music or were puzzled by it. Another feature that was noted, was that when a student was doubtful of the number being played, he or she invariably looked upward as if to gather inspiration from above—a pretty good evidence that music has an uplifting influence.

The children were told to write the name of the composition and composer just as soon as they recognized the same, and this they evidently did gladly, for then they could sit back and enjoy the remainder of the music, and there was no doubt that they did enjoy the music, as did the committee and Mr. Michael. It was also very gratifying to see so many lads in the contest and evidently well acquainted with the music.

The committee and the superintendent had the arrangement of handing out and gathering up records, collecting papers, etc., so systematized that they were enabled to complete the contest at each school in about 20 minutes. Then there was a hustle for the superintendent's automobile, and while they just did not break any speed laws, neither did they do any "loafing" in getting to one school from the other, their coming being telephoned from the school they left to the one they went to.

While no exact count could be taken at School No. 8, owing to the large number of children occupying all of the assembly hall, about 120 children entered the contest there. Another thing that greatly interested the committee was watching the children's faces as they showed by believed expression that some phrase, some bit of melody or interlude had brought to the child's mind the name of the composition at first not recognized.

Before the afternoon was over, it was perfectly apparent that No. 1 was well named, "Humoresque," for almost its first notes were hailed with a smile—a good broad one—of immediate recognition.

From School No. 5, the committee sped to School No. 6, where between 70 and 80 children were awaiting their arrival. Next to Humoresque, Mendelssohn's Spring Song seemed the most popular and well known, closely followed in recognition by the Hallelujah Chorus from the Messiah.

At School No. 5, next to be visited, another large gathering of children was assembled, some hundred and twelve. By this time it was most apparent that No. 8 was Superintendent Michael's favorite, even if it was not as well known, as it should have been by the boys and girls. In fact, this very instance showed the value of this Musical Memory Contest, for it is safe to say that hereafter every boy and girl who heard Handel's Largo on Friday will know it as they should, for this stately, beautiful, impressive, devout musical composition should be known by cultured people just as they know William Cullen Bryant's Thanatopsis or some of the more stately lyrics of Milton's "Paradise Lost."

No. 2, where there were about 45 children registered in the contest, was another school with a wonderful outlook which offered a dual inspiration with the music, for across the Rondout creek one looked into the very heart of coming Spring. And the contestants at School No. 2, had the honor of a visiting contestant for one lad from School No. 1, who could not wait for the committee to visit his school—which was the last to be visited—as he had a newspaper route, had secured permission to go to School No. 2 and enter the contest there. The committee hope he will be in for the final contest and win a prize, even though they do not know who he is at this writing.

At School No. 3, the forty-five boys and girls seemed very well acquainted with the music, humming along with many of the numbers, and nowhere were the children evidently any happier over the whole affair than at this school.

The No. 4, pupils, some thirty seven in number, were also evidently on quite friendly terms with most of the selections humming along very musically as the records were played and having a right good time, even if they had been, so to speak, "kept in after school."

But for patience and genuine interest School No. 1 must have the utmost praise. They had previously assured Superintendent Michael that they would wait until the committee came, and wait patiently—that is all but the lad who went up to School No. 2—so to show his appreciation, Mr. Michael said they might play base ball and have a good time between the hour that school would normally close, and the arrival of the committee. When the auto reached the school grounds which offered a spring picture to make envious the lover of a beautiful picture, there were the boys and girls and Principal Flannery all having a fine time playing base ball, but they instantly dropped bat and ball and gloves, formed in line and marched to the assembly room for the test. There were twenty-five of them and The Freeman reporter has a suspicion that School No. 1, will have a very high record from the apparent quick recognition of practically all of the numbers played. The children were heartily thanked by the committee for the patience in waiting so good naturedly.

While the whole afternoon had been most delightful to the committee, the memory of those twenty-five children who had so cheerfully accommodated themselves to circumstances, and yet who had cared enough to hold their places for the final contest by waiting was a particularly pleasing climax.

Now the committee's busy that they even make short answers when their friends call them up on the telephone for they realize that there are those five hundred boys and girls who want to know whether or no they may enter the final contest, and in addition, there are all of the arrangements for the final contest itself to be made, so they are trying to get the five hundred papers corrected and graded by the first of the week. They hope that most of the contestants, if not all, will qualify for the final try-out of musical appreciation and knowledge of standard musical compositions.

Dance at Stone Ridge.
The private dance held at the Stone Ridge Grange Hall Friday night was largely attended and all report a fine time. Excellent music was furnished by Wilson's orchestra.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 9.—The stock market was very dull during the first half hour today, comment being that during that period there was not a sale of United States Steel and only small business in many of the other active shares. Mexican

Petroleum moved up 1/4 to 138 1/4 but lost nearly all this gain on the next transaction. Royal Dutch opened up 1/4 at 54 1/4. The feature was the heavy sales of Pennsylvania, which carried that stock down 1/4 to 32 1/4, a new low record since it has been traded in on the stock exchange.

U. S. Rubber ranged from 7 1/4 to 7 1/4 against 7 1/4 at the close yester day and there was a show of ac tivity in General Asphalt, which mov ed up 1/4 to 5 1/4 and then dropped to 5 1/4. Generally the stocks traded in showed small fractional declines.

The market closed steady today.

Government bonds unchanged; rail way and other bonds steady.

CHECKING GROWTH.

The Building Trade Situation Clearly Outlined and Defined.

Under a heading, "Newburgh in Hard Luck Again," the Newburgh News prints the following editorial:

In many cities building contractors have announced a reduction in wages without bothering to ask building trades workers how they felt about it. The workers could accept the reduction or quit work. Master builders could not quit enough contracts to keep them going on estimates which included labor at war-time cost. They made the cut because they felt it had to be made, and if the workers refused to accept it the responsibility was on the latter for stagnation of building and for their own loss of employment. Newburgh's master builders have pursued an entirely different course. They have viewed the situation from a broad standpoint and recognized the mutual interest of the building contractor and the building worker. They have not said to the workers, "We are going to reduce wages, because we simply have to." Instead they have said: "The prospects for a building revival in Newburgh are excellent if we together can effect a reduction in cost. Let us talk the matter over and see what we can do. We do not expect you to make relatively any more of a sacrifice than we ourselves are willing to make." The workers talked the matter over with the contractors, and it was confidently hoped something would result from the conference, but information received by City Manager McKay indicates that both parties are simply "marking time." Newburghers have hundreds of thousands of dollars to invest in dwellings and other buildings. No more of them than necessary are going to pay war taxes for construction. If the contractors and workers do not want the work, all they need to do is to maintain the high scale. Meanwhile the housing situation will remain acute and rents will stay high. The city will not be built up, but other cities will be built up. We may continue to record a gain of a hundred or so in population a year in the next decade. That seems to be our limit. We never seem to be able to take advantage of our opportunities. If there is not one thing to prevent it, there is another.

Expecting that they have not even "marked it over" the same condition exists in Kingston.

It seldom happens that a local musician has any opportunity of talent but the exception in Mrs. William H. Riser, who is well known and appreciated as a vocalist of high standing, who has had a record made of her wonderful voice on a Columbia record which can only be obtained at the Columbia Shop, 273 Fair street. ## HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

Tuesday morning the students of the high school were the recipients of a most unusual treat. Mrs. William H. Riser was present and sang some of the favorite melodies of the south. Mr. Riser was also present and gave a brief sketch of Mrs. Riser's history. She was born in the south and knows these songs in a way which no northerner can. He recently made for the Columbia people, "Carry Me Back To Old Virginia." Mrs. Riser then sang several other well known songs from Dixie, accompanying herself on the piano. The entire program was inspiring from beginning to end and it was with regret that the students went off to their studies without being allowed to have the pleasure of hearing more.

Wednesday morning, Margaret Hasbrouck, a member of the senior class, gave a very clever sketch on the day-dreams of a senior just before he is about to leave his high school to enter into the world of business. The composition was excellent in every detail and only a senior could produce the correct effect.

Thursday morning, Miss Paulding, who will be remembered by many in this city as the former director of music in the public schools, was an attendant at the regular assembly period. After a little persuasion she was induced to take the platform and lead the singing of the assembly. The delight of the few high school students who are there now and were when she was there in charge of the music, she selected some of her favorite songs. It was certainly like old times to have her leading the singing of the songs which the high school students have learned to like.

Friday morning several members of the Audubon Society gave some interesting selections on birds and birdlore. The program was well worth listening to and showed that some of the first year students are gifted in oratory.

BUD CULLOTON WINS HIS GAME

"Bud" Culloton, pitching ace of the Fordham University nine, added another victory to his string on Friday afternoon at Fordham Field in New York city when the Fordhamites took the University of Vermont into camp by a score of 5 to 1. It was Bud's steady pitching with men on bases that won the game. He tossed four one-pump and allowed but seven hits. In the pinches the visitors could not touch him. Newman for Vermont also tossed seven innings, but the Marooners bunched their hits. Culloton is well known in athletic circles in Kingston where he resides on Lower Broadway, and is a student at Fordham.

When the gates swung wide on Ellis Island, N. Y., recently and let the Feyen family into the United States the population of the country was increased by fifteen. They were from Holland, N. Y. nation, can best be Dutch in this wonderful matter of human productivity. But it is well to state that the Feyen family is even the Dutch record of big families at Ellis Island in point of youth. The oldest is only sixteen, while the youngest is eight months. Hendrik Feyen, head of the house, shown at the extreme right, top row, is the five. Diana, his wife, just thirty-two, and radiant with health, is shown in the centre holding the baby.

"MARY" AT OPERA HOUSE TONIGHT

George M. Cohan's musical comedy, "Mary," at the Kingston Opera House tonight, will be presented by a company numbering sixty people. The comedy is one which really has attained fame. Among the nice things said about it are: That few other shows contain so many numbers which are familiar to everyone because the music of "Mary" possesses the peculiar quality of harmony and rhythm which makes it "catchy." Among the delightfully tuneful songs numbers are "The Love Song," "Mary," "Waiting," "Anything You Want, Dear," "Anything You Meet a Lady," "Don't Fall Until You've Seen Them All," and many others. The comedy is clean, bright and snappy and there is not only a wealth of rapid-fire fun but many bewitching dance creations.

The book by Otto Harbach and Frank Mandel stories a young American who has hit upon a plan to reduce the high cost of living, while "Mary," the social secretary of the young man's mother, is largely instrumental in perfecting these plans. The romance provides a fragrant love story of irresistible appeal. The story is told in two acts, the first laid in the month of January and the second in June, which allows an advantage of contrasting scenic and costume setting which has been used to the best advantage. The music is by Lew Hirsch, and Edna Fendleton is in the title role.
